COUNCIL’S REPORT
The Council presents its annual report and financial statements for the year ended 30 September 2006.

OBJECTIVES
The IHBC is a company and a charity and exists to promote, for the benefit of the public, the conservation of and education and training in the conservation and preservation of buildings, structures, areas, gardens and landscapes which are of architectural or historical value in the UK insofar as it lies within the duties and responsibilities of any person whose principal professional skills are to provide specialist advice in such conservation and preservation.

The IHBC’s key activities are:
- setting standards for conservation practice throughout the UK and Ireland and improving education and training in conservation
- raising the profile of conservation and promoting its role in economic and social regeneration
- supporting excellence in all aspects of conservation, whether in the identification, analysis, repair and reuse of historic buildings or in new design in historic settings
- stimulating debate on how the role of conservation should develop
- organising its own training events and further developing its branch network in the UK and Ireland to encourage the continued exchange of information between practitioners at the local level.

ORGANISATIONAL STRUCTURE
The institute is governed by a Council with up to 20 voting members made up of up to nine elected officers (Chair, Vice-Chair, Secretary, Treasurer and five committee chairs) and up to 13 representatives of regional branches, as well as several non-voting officers co-opted by Council, including the President. Council is advised by five committees, each chaired by an elected officer: Finance & Resources Committee, Membership & Ethics Committee, Education, Training & Standards Committee, Policy Committee, and Communications & Outreach Committee. The committees oversee a number of advisory sub-committees, boards and panels.

RESULTS
The gross resources arising in the year amounted to £196,953 (2005: £246,449). Overall, the charity’s incoming resources exceeded its expenditure by £4,957 (2005: £36,284).
ACTIVITIES AND DEVELOPMENTS DURING THE YEAR

This year the institute has really reaped the benefits from a stronger central organisation and new structure, as you will see from the activities set out below. Indeed, the ‘virtual headquarters’ is attracting envy from comparable organisations weighed down by the rigidity and costs of a conventional office establishment. The institute has been making best use of this administrative agility to ensure that the wonderful and inspiring voluntary effort put in by its members is used efficiently and effectively. It has been a very demanding year indeed for external policy and consultations, particularly in England, and the institute has risen to the challenge again with major contributions to planning and heritage protection policy. At the same time, the organisation has maintained and developed the branch structure as an effective and responsive way of providing a service to its members.

In summary, this year the IHBC has:

• held four council meetings, supported by committee meetings, and the AGM
• produced five issues of the institute’s journal Context
• published, with the support of its publisher, Cathedral Communications, the institute’s sixth Yearbook, for 2006
• established a ‘business plan’ format for branches, and endorsed the first plan in the new format for the Scotland branch, as well as formalising the procedures for the dispersal of funds to branches based on the new business plan format
• developed and initiated its strategy for developing a business plan for the national body, including holding a corporate ‘away-day’ in Birmingham for council representatives to consider themes and strategies. The first of these corporate planning days was held in September.
• established, within this strategy, its ‘virtual’ national office as a management infrastructure providing executive support for the organisation
• appointed a projects officer, responsible for developing project work internally, and available as a support service for members
• drafted, deposited and printed the relevant Annual Report and AGM papers
• continued expansion and promotion of the IHBC’s benefits and brand, through supporting its recognition by the Planning Inspectorate in England, developing and initiating a ‘Communications Strategy’, and rationalising procedures for Affiliate membership applications including drafting a new IHBC membership leaflet for Affiliate members
• secured £30,000 of relevant research into the sector, including initiation of a preliminary research programme by IHBC, funded by English Heritage (EH), outlining local planning authority conservation services in England
• initiated and project-managed an EH-funded joint research programme, with the Institute of Field Archaeologists (IFA), into capacity-building through partnership strategies between the two institutes

- developed political partnerships and promotion through high-level meetings with senior ministers in Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) (Baroness Andrews) and Department of Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) (David Lammy), and, through the Built Environment Forum Scotland (BEFS), in the Scottish Parliament, as well as, directly and indirectly, in Wales and Northern Ireland

- continued to participate in the DCMS Project Board informing the evolution of the draft White Paper attached to the Heritage Protection Review (HPR)

- helped shape DCMS/EH studies of how local government operations and officers deliver support for their historic places, including supporting the 2006 report by Atkins into local delivery of historic environment services

- continued extensive promotion in EH/DCMS/Association of Local Government Archaeology Officers (ALGAO) discussions into establishing operational standards and service delivery requirements for Historic Environment Records under HPR

- maintained its promotion of professional standards appropriate to the UK’s professional body for historic environment conservation specialists, by continuing its emphasis on compulsory continuing professional development (CPD) and promoting and delivering activities supporting CPD

- maintained support for and contributions to the new ‘universal portal’ for historic environment information in England, the Heritage Gateway

- led, with the Institution of Highways and Transport, the re-positioning of Urban Design Alliance, in advance of taking on the role of chairing UDAL’s board (from December 2006) and assuming the lead in developing the organisation’s new business plan

- initiated its role as a partner in research by National Heritage Training Group and ConstructionSkills (the sector skills council) into skills-needs assessment for built environment heritage professionals (including conservation officers)

- opened investigations into joining the awards programme operated by the Institute of Conservation (Icon), as well as examining other awards-related initiatives

- continued discussions with EH and others on the development of National Occupational Standards for historic environment conservation professionals, including contributing to two major surveys (as yet unpublished)

- secured ‘List 3’ inscription with the Inland Revenue to allow members to offset membership subscriptions against tax, in line with other professional and learned bodies
• joined with The Society of Architectural Historians of Great Britain in advising on the EH-led promotion of supporting the application of architectural history in conservation

• contributed to discussions on training needs assessments for conservation professionals inside and outside local government

• joined with IFA in the EH-funded professional training programme, English Heritage Professional Placements in Conservation, involving two one-year architectural conservation-related training posts inside EH

• hosted, with Icon, a day for built-environment and related stakeholder groups to assess the artefact-based accreditation process operated by Icon, Professional Accreditation of Conservator-Restorers

• participated in the Edinburgh Group, the forum of professional institutes that offers accreditation in conservation within their discipline, including supporting the accompanying new website www.understandingconservation.com

• continued advising on and supporting new EH training initiatives for developing professional skills appropriate to proposed new HPR legislation

• attended meetings of the Funding and Regeneration groups of Heritage Link

• continued formal meetings and links with senior figures in national heritage bodies, including EH, Historic Scotland and Cadw

2 Minutes of the AGM held on Saturday 9 July 2005 and matters arising

The minutes were circulated prior to the meeting, alongside the Council’s report and the Accounts. Robert Parkinson had not been listed under those present but he had attended the meeting. There were no other amendments, corrections or matters arising from the minutes. Acceptance of the minutes as an accurate record of the meeting was agreed. The President, David Lovie, then signed the minutes.

3 Council’s report

Referring to published AGM papers, the Chair of the Council, John Yates, summarised what he described as an extraordinary year and updated on key items of news. With the Director in post the ability to participate in the shaping of future legislation and other changes affecting the sector had been increased. The structure of the institute had also been reviewed and overhauled to make it more efficient. He referred the meeting particularly to the list of activities in the printed papers and said in addition there had also been five issues of Context, expressing particular thanks to the Editorial Board.

More recently, it was observed, a new post of Projects Officer had been created and the Chair was pleased to announce that Fiona Newton had been appointed. She has been an active member representing the East Midlands branch at Council and as Chair of the Communications & Outreach Committee, both of which she will step down from when she takes up her new appointment.

The chairmanship of UDAL is rotated annually between its members and it is now the turn of IHBC. David Lovie is to take this up on the institute’s behalf.

There were no questions on the Council’s report.

4 Accounts for 2003–2004

The Treasurer, Michael Knights (MK), told the meeting that a summarised version of the accounts had been printed in the AGM papers and the full report is available should anyone wish to see it. He reported that the financial situation is healthy. As recommended by our accountants in line with recommendations by the Charity Commission, a reserve representing approximately six months operating costs is being secured. The Treasurer is confident that the new Projects Officer post will not cause undue strain on the finances. Annual subscriptions levels remain unchanged although these would be reviewed over the next 12 months with an expectation of an increase in line with strategies already agreed at the 2003 AGM, approving increases in line with inflation. Eddie Booth asked if any increase in subscription needed to be brought to an AGM. The Director said it was felt to be courteous to do so.

Under Resolution 1, MK recommended the accounts to the meeting, the approval of which was proposed by Mike Brown and seconded by Rob Parkinson.

Under Resolution 2, MK recommended the appointment of Larking Gowen, Chartered Accountants, as accountants, the approval of which was proposed by Jon Finney and seconded by Robert Walker.

5 Election of officers

The President drew the meeting’s attention to the list of officers for election as printed in the AGM papers. The posts of Publicity Secretary and Chairman of the Editorial Board are currently vacant. The remaining posts of Chair, Vice Chair, Treasurer, Education Secretary, Membership Secretary and Secretary were voted for en bloc, and were proposed by Eddie Booth and seconded by Paul Barker.

The nominations of branch representatives were also listed in the AGM papers. Fiona Newton explained that her name was on the list as she had been branch representative for the East Midlands since the branch AGM in September 2005.
This vote was to ratify that decision. She would step down when she takes up the Projects Officer post. There would be a short period when the East Midlands branch would not have an elected representative to Council as the next branch AGM is in September. The nominations, which were dealt with en bloc, were proposed by Bob Kindred and seconded by John Selby.

6 Motions to the AGM
There were no motions put to the meeting.

7 Any other business
Colin Johns told the meeting about the Association of Preservation Trusts conference at Cromford Mill on 12–14 October. The theme is partnering and the process of reusing old buildings.

The Chair said his three-year term in office was due to end at the next AGM and the President’s second two-year term would also come to an end after that. The other role that would soon be vacant is the Chair of the Communications & Outreach Committee. He encouraged those present to think about volunteering for these roles: anyone interested should email the Director. Bob Kindred asked if there were job descriptions and details of time commitment for these roles. The Director said this was still being explored due to the structural changes that have been made.

The Director informed the meeting of developments on accreditation issues. He then outlined the possibility of links with the Institute of Conservation which are being explored, and invited anyone interested in taking part in a pilot project to contact him. There were no questions from the floor.

The meeting considered the Heritage Protection Review. The Director and Malcolm Airs have been attending high-level meetings which will influence the legislation and the discussions for the draft white paper, currently expected in late September 2006. The Vice Chair attends the same meetings on behalf of Planning Aid and the IHBC. Bob Kindred reported that the Select Committee Report on Heritage is still being drafted and is expected at the end of July. Wide ranging evidence was heard with that put forward by the institute being commended. He reminded the meeting that the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Bill 2004 was changed considerably on its way through the Commons and the same thing may well happen with any new proposed legislation. The Director reported that as part of the review, significant research by Atkins had been undertaken into the process, quality and output of the conservation officer type role within local government; this will be a valuable tool when published. Further information on the review will be included in future issues of Context and a joint seminar with the Local Government Association on the subject is planned.
The Chair led discussions on some points that were raised by the speaker from English Heritage at the start of the day.

On unified lists Rob Parkinson felt there would be little difference to those on the ground as many are unified already. Bob Kindred felt this would carry very little weight. Paul Barker felt it was time to resurvey buildings already on the lists.

On historic buildings listings which will be map-based rather than curtilage-based in future, Paul Barker said that maps were often far from perfect. Bob Kindred suggested that having two systems in place could create a confused terminology and interpretation as the existing system was retro-fitted to the new one. Other suggestions included putting listed buildings on a register and dropping the term ‘listed’. However, it was pointed out that the average person in the street had heard of and understands the term listed building; if it were scrapped it could cause confusion.

Unified consents were also discussed; several local authorities have been tracking conservation area consents in the wake of the Shimizu case and applications have dropped dramatically. Mike Brown expressed concern that demolition should be controlled through planning.

On management and heritage protection agreements it was pointed out that these are nothing new, with many already in place, and it was felt that these do not take up much time for those in local government.

On Historic Environment Records it was considered that these developments would not make much difference to those on the ground.

The Director said the Atkins report shows that many initiatives linked to HPR were happening in some places already.

The President thanked the conference organisers, officers and council members and closed the meeting at 6.00 pm.
